

A Purple Place for Dying: Introduction by Lee Child: Travis McGee, No. 3

MacDonald had a huge influence on me . . . Reacher is like a fully detached version of Travis McGee LEE CHILD Travis McGee isnt your typical knight in shining armour. He only works when his cash runs out, and his rule is simple: Hell help you find whatever was taken from you, as long as he can keep half. 32-year-old Mona is in love with a poor, young college professor, but is trapped in a marriage with a wealthy businessman whom she is convinced is stealing from her trust fund. To get out, she does what any self-respecting woman would do: She hires someone to steal her money back so she can run away with the man she loves. Travis McGee isnt sure he wants to help out...until he sees Mona shot dead on the cliffs near her cabin. But when he arrives at the scene, her body is gone. And theres no trace of them ever having met. Will Travis prove that what he saw was real, and unravel a complex murder web, in time to save his own skin? First published in 1964, A Purple Place for Dying features an introduction by Lee Child JOHN D. MACDONALD: A GRAND MASTER CRIME WRITER The great entertainer of our age, and a mesmerizing storyteller - Stephen King Travis McGee is my favourite fiction detective. Hes great because he has a philosophical side he will fight a bunch of mobsters in a car park and then have a muse about life, the universe and everything - Tony Parsons Travis McGee is my favourite fiction detective.
