

Behind the Eyes of Madness: Letters from the Brink of Sanity

Behind the eyes of madness, lies hurt, pain, anger, and memories that tear at the fabric of a person. In this book, one will find a collection of letters and poems written by individuals on the brink of sanity. Through the words inked in the letters and across the verses of the poems, one can make a clear connection with hurt and pain that of the writers of the letters and poems that are contained in these pages. Many of the letters and poems were intended to reach out to loved ones while the writer was on the edge. They were a cry for help or solace or remembrance. Perhaps the intended recipient might be reading them right now and realize the message that was to be conveyed in that darkest hour of their lives.
