

Of Superior Design (Superior Beings Book 2)

With the birth of Daemon a new breed emerged and Heavens question answered. They had been warring with Hell since the beginning of time using surrogates soldiers in their stead. Earth was an experiment, a testing grounds to see if Mother Nature could improve on Heavenly technology. Designed with cellular perfection, the need to dominate and an absence of fear the Superiors were the solution; the answer to Hells Hoard. The family of LeTorque had taken control of Third Clan, preparing to fulfill their destiny and unite all. They were led by a Vampire mated to a Wolf who had a unique problem; he was under a death sentence issued by his murderous twin and ruler of Second Clan; Yin. Yang was twin in name only for he was a supplicant; an inferior who had given all superior traits to his brother for survival. He was a Cloak. His blood hid his scent from others of his kind and if any bonded with him they too received his talent. In the world of Superiors scent reigned supreme for it separated them from the other dominant species on the planet; the infinitely inferior but numerically superior Humans. Wolves were the weapon Vampires employed in their hierarchal society where family status was directly tied to business acumen. The LeTorque had found a way to combine the three spheres of economic influence and combine them under one roof. Their family was unique. Two Alpha Wolves had abandoned their need to dominate and ceded authority to one who held no physical advantages but whose blood held the promise of absolute authority over all. One desired outcome by two differing species with opposing views of success. The emergence of a child who held the power of three; Wolf strength, Vamp guile and Cloak invisibility. Daemon was the answer but his revelation came with a question; what would be Heavens response? Would Superior survival be at stake when the finished product revealed?

If Daemon was the answer what was their purpose; their meaning of life?
