

If - Enhanced E-Book Edition (Includes Image Gallery, Author Bio + Audio Links. Fully illustrated and enhanced e-book optimized for Kindle)

If you can keep your head when all about you are losing theirs First published in 1910, If is probably the best known and loved poem by Kipling. Here is Kipling on the global response to his poem in 1910:

If, escaped from the book .. and for a while ran about the world.. [It was] printed as cards to hang up in offices and bedrooms; illuminated text-wise and anthologized to weariness. Twenty-seven of the Nations of the Earth translated [the verses] into their seven-and-twenty tongues, and printed them on every sort of fabric. (Something of Myself page 146.) If was written in 1895 and first published in Rewards and Fairies, 1910. It was written in tribute to the British imperialist politician Leander Starr Jameson, and as paternal advice to Kipling's son John. As poetry, If is a literary example of Victorian-era stoicism - the stiff upper lip self-discipline, which popular culture rendered into a British national virtue and character trait. Indian historian and writer Khushwant Singh said that If is the essence of the message of The Gita in English. In England, the third and fourth lines of the second stanza of the poem: If you can meet with Triumph and Disaster / and treat those two impostors just the same are written on the wall of the players entrance to the Centre Court at the All England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club, where the Wimbledon Championships are held. The poem is presented here in Enhanced E-Book format.
