

The Puzzle Girl: A Paul Murdock Story, Book 3

She was a professional beauty, with a face and body that every woman envied and every man desired. Then an anonymous madman destroyed that beauty, and private investigator Paul Murdock was hired to find out why. Murdock had first encountered the dark side of humanity on the battlefields of Vietnam, where an enemy bullet robbed him of the use of his legs. Now confined to a wheelchair, Murdock's latest case takes him to a different kind of war zone: the sleazy, unglamorous side of Hollywood, where souls are traded and lives destroyed in the unrelenting drive for fame. Murdock has never been dazzled by celebrity, and a town built on make-believe is about to receive a lesson in Murdock's brand of .45 caliber reality.
