

Murder on the Mallaig Express (Meadowside Crime Book 7)

What could be more spine-tingling than a Murder Weekend? Molly Palmer, who is an experienced organiser of such events, has arranged her latest gathering at a hotel in Mallaig. Detective-Inspector Raynes has been invited to supervise proceedings and enters fully in to the spirit of the weekend. Unfortunately, it transpires that a body has been thrown off the train that brought the guests up to Mallaig and it becomes clear that one of Mollys guests may have been the murderer. The Inspector finds himself caught between frivolous play-acting and grim reality, in which even he has been allocated a sinister part. Exposure is the name of the game. But who is exposing whom?
