

The Bone Room

Roman Stone is a cop who has spent the last few years of his life trying to rebuild the career he nearly destroyed. He gets called to Alexandria Bay, NY to help the small town police force find a popular missing teenager. While investigating the case, random human bones start washing up on the shores of the St. Lawrence River and two major cases collide. Looking for help on the case, Roman asks local historian Becca Quinn to show him around one of the local castles in the area. Becca works for the Thousand Island Preservation Society and spends her days working to restore some of the old abandoned mansions in the area for a new tourism initiative. But what they find is more than anyone expects. Something strange is lurking under the surface of the murky waters of the river.
