

The Seer: Or Common-Places Refreshed, Vol. 1 of 2 (Classic Reprint)

Essays have been collected, for the first time, from such of the authors periodical writings as it was thought might furnish another publication similar to the Indicator. Most of them have been taken from the London Journal, and the remainder from the Liberal, the Monthly Repository, the Tatler, and the Round Table. The title, of course, is to be understood in its primitive and most simple sense, and not in its portentous one, as connected with fore sight and prophecy; nor would the author profess, intellectually, to see farther into a millstone than his betters. His motto, which thoroughly explains, will also, he trusts, vindicate, all which he aspires to show; which is, that the more we look at any thing in this beautiful and abounding world with a desire to be truly pleased with it, the more we shall be rewarded by the loving Spirit of the universe with discoveries that await only the desire.
