Excerpt: ... God, that created all things, can renew! And then, though after-life to please me now Must have no likeness to the past, what hinders Reward from springing out of toil, as changed As bursts the flower from earth and root and stalk? What use were punishment, unless some sin Be first detected? let me know that first! No man could ever offend as I have done . . . 280 //_A voice from within.^ I hear a voice, perchance I heard Long ago, but all too low, So that scarce a care it stirred If the voice were real or no: I heard it in my youth when first The waters of my life outburst: But, now their stream ebbs faint, I hear That voice, still low, but fatal-clear -- As if all poets, God ever meant Should save the world, and therefore lent 290 Great gifts to, but who, proud, refused To do his work, or lightly used Those gifts, or failed through weak endeavor, So, mourn cast off by him forever, -- As if these leaned in airy ring To take me; this the song they sing. Lost, lost! yet come, With our wan troop make thy home. Come, come! for we Will not breathe, so much as breathe 300 Reproach to thee, Knowing what thou sinkst beneath. So sank we in those old years, We who bid thee, come ! thou last Who, living yet, hast life oerpast. And altogether we, thy peers, Will pardon crave for thee, the last Whose trial :s done, whose lot is cast With those who watch but work no more, Who gaze on life but live no more. 310 Yet we trusted thou shouldst speak The message which our lips, too weak, Refused to utter, -- shouldst redeem Our fault: such trust, and all a dream! Yet we chose thee a birthplace Where the richness ran to flowers: Couldst not sing one song for grace? Not make one blossom mans and ours? Must one more recreant to his race Die with unexerted powers, 320
