

Trends in Wound Care (British Journal of Nursing (BJN) Monograph)

This dictionary defines words and terms that are used in tissue viability with the aim of providing clinical and evidence-based information in wound care and pressure ulcer prevention. The dictionary definitions include words that are in common use in tissue viability and also those that are rarely used, but require explanation when discovered in academic journals. This reference book has been produced to assist nurses on tissue viability courses, students, physiotherapists, occupational therapists and those with a general interest in the subject. There are several pages of illustrations to support descriptions. There are many biochemical terms within the text, offering a better understanding of wound healing and providing background information for evidence-based practice.
